Troop 10 Scouts Return From Appalachian Trip

Twenty-four members of Boy Scout Troop 10 returned recently from a nine-day trip through North Georgia and western South Carolina. The highlight of the trip was a 50-mile hike of the Appalachian Trail by 10 of the scouts and three adults.

The troop spent the first night at the U.S. Army Ranger Camp located 12 miles north of Dahlonega, Ga., once a booming gold mining area.

The following morning 24 scouts and six adults began hiking the trail. Two days later they arrived at Lake Winfield Scott for swimming and laundry duties.

THE NEXT day they split into two groups. Fourteen scouts and three adults boarded the troop bus, affectionately known as "The No Noc," and went to Myrtle Beach, S. C., and other points of interest along the Atlantic coast.

The other group continued on the trail for the next three days, hiking a total of 35 miles. The two groups then rendezvoused at the Ranger camp near Dahlonega for the return to Tuscaloosa.

The only problem encountered along the trail was a yellow jacket nest that resulted in several boys getting stung.

AN INTERESTING "extra" received by the Scouts was a demonstration by Rangers of Hand-to-hand combat techniques. The Rangers also demonstrated how to scale cliffs and transport equipment across ravines. Finally, the Scouts were shown a display of captured Viet Cong weapons and U.S. weapons.

Other trips made by Troop 10 earlier this year were to Vicksburg and Six Flags Over Georgia. The Scouts earned most of the money for the trips themselves.

Charles Smith is scoutmaster and the troop is sponsored by the Forest Lake Baptist Church.

Yes Sir, Dad, You Really Missed Something

By CHARLES LAND
News Managing Editor

There comes a time when a man must confess to certain basic truths.

Now don't get excited. It's no big deal.

What I mean is, I just never have been one to washed out, I have needed a boat.

Unless you're one of those eternal optimists, you understand.

Every time I have seen a dark cloud, it has rained.

Every time I have suspected a bridge of being washed out, I have needed a boat.

If I tell you a mosquito can pull a plow, you can put it all on the plow.

Get the idea?

There was last weekend, for example. I was all set to be the interested father. I was going to desert the golf course, forsake the river, join my son and his Boy Scout troop and spend the weekend camping out at Gulf States Paper's Westervelt Game Preserve near Aliceville.

It was an admirable ambition for a man so often in the doghouse because of the playing of games, he said games participant types or spectator sorts.

No, sir, there would be no slices or duck-hooks for me this weekend. I would not snag my lure on the only stump in the lake, tangle the stringer in the outboard motor or any of that stuff.

Instead I would lead the good life. For one weekend, at least, only the lack of a church service would keep me from being among the pure at heart.

I might even get out of the doghouse. And it wouldn't be like hanging around with a bunch of rookie campers, either. This was, after all, Troop 10. And Troop 10 had been where it was.

Westervelt would be no challenge to good old Troop 10, not with people like Charlie Smith and Shot Sherrill and Jim Givens and Austin West to help lead the way.

Westervelt would be strictly ho-hum. After all, Troop 10 stalwarts had hiked from 20 to 50 miles each on the famed Appalachian Trail just last summer. They brought back the color slides (and the blisters) to prove it.

Troop 10 had camped amid the wild jungle of Six-Mile Creek, exploring its dangerous caves, and boldly pitched its tents in the rarefied air of Brough's Bluff.

Troop 10 had even survived the fantastic Cape Kennedy traffic jam that had accompanied the launching of Apollo 11.

Westervelt would be a lark, a gentle zephyr in the rush of everyday life, a weekend away from it all without a telephone within hearing range. It would be something, Westervelt would.

I tried to remember where I had put the old sleeping bag after I had inherited it back from my son. I felt a twinge of guilt about not having knocked all the mud from my boots after that last hunting trip.

That was nothing to the twinge I felt when the bursitis attacked my left shoulder. If you never have had bursitis, you cannot really appreciate that statement. Bursitis doesn't even have to attack, you see. All bursitis has to do to run you up the wall is just show up.

It started Wednesday, and by Friday I wasn't about

Yes Sir

Mike Land voiced his regrets, and it was agreed maybe old dad could drive on over Saturday and spend that night, and then No. 1 son and his buddies bravely drove away — into the teeth of a February rain that surely would put April to shame.

Glumly I drove back to the doghouse — er, home — my wonderful weekend shot down. I had flirted with Dame Fortune and lost again. I was saddled not only with bursitis, but with another weekend in civilized surroundings. Indeed I was missing something.

It was noon Sunday before I really realized what I had missed. That was when No. 1 son arrived at the door, undaunted and unbowed, but hardly looking like one of those Boy Scouts they put on the posters.

He was barefoot. There was a smear of mud across his chin. His glasses were buried somewhere in the pile of soggy gear at the doorstep. Wet? Scout Land looked for all the world like a refugee from the monsoon season.

Yes, sir, he cheerfully informed me, I really had missed something. Westervelt had been where it was, all right, although most of what it was appeared to be smeared and caked on his pack, bedroll and person.

No, he couldn't single out a high point. He couldn't decide whether it was when the troop bus got stuck, or the trailer which had the food for his patrol, or the tractor that had come out to rescue the bus and trailer.

Or maybe it was hiking the extra few miles because of taking the wrong road while hunting for the trailer, or when the tent fell down in the middle of the night and he went slogging to the barn in his longjohns. Or was it the guy who woke up to find he and his air mattress were floating around on four inches of water inside his tent?

It was indeed a sad revelation. Opportunity had beckoned, and I had not been prepared. Mike Land and his buddies had had all the fun, while I had been forced to endure a weekend at home.

No healthy Scout menu for me, no hiking through the mud, no savoring the feel of fresh rain on my brow. Instead I had miserably settled for grilling a steak and driving about in the car. I had hardly even felt a drop of rain all weekend.

Oh, well. You can't win 'em all.

UFO's, missing boys and such at Foscue Park

Demopolis' park facilities are becoming a well known feature of the town.

Recently, Boy Scout Troop 10 of Tuscaloosa, sponsored by Forest Hills Baptist Church, set up camp for the weekend at Indian, (a Scout) came out to pray to the south, east, west and as he prayed to the God of the South, a ball of fire came down from the sky (a flare in disguise) to start the fire. Afterwards each patrol did a skit, wild Indians but the nearer to the UFO they got, the quieter they became. (The UFO just happened to be made out of plates from the Demopolis' Times' store room). After all the excitement died down, everybody that was visiting went home to stop and think what a fine place Demopolis must be, to have people come from over the country to camp in our fast-becoming-famous and widely known Foscue Park

Long time Troop 10 Scoutmaster Jim Gibbons passes away.

JIM GIBBONS
(Friend, Father & Scoutmaster)

The question put forth by a young son who asked, "Dad, my troop is going camping, wouldn't you like to come along?" marked the beginning of a legendary career as a Scoutmaster for Jim Gibbons. Jim Gibbons, Scoutmaster of Troop 10, Forest Lake Baptist Church, passed away in late December 1989. He will be sorely missed.

Jim attended Camp Horne as a Scout in 1933. He had served as Scoutmaster for the past 23 years. Jim was the father of two Eagle Scout sons, Paul and Mark. He was Woodbadge trained and a Silver Beaver. He was a retired Major in the Air Force. Jim was buried with full military honors wearing his Scout Uniform.

Jim made a great impact on the lives of the young men in his Troop. All who had the privilege of knowing this great Scouter are saddened by his passing. We take comfort knowing that as we gather around the campfire and ask "May the great Scoutmaster of all good Scouts be with us until we meet again, " Jim will be smiling down on us.
